

CONTENTS

Foreword	xiii
Preface	xv
Verb Sap.	xvii

PART ONE

Chapter 1 The Vocation of a Judge	1
The concept of priesthood	1
An elite of service	2
Intra-curial relationships in the superior courts	4
Acting with restraint and dignity	6
Keeping a low profile	9
Abuse of the prestige and power of office	11
No preferential treatment to be expected or sought	12
Official stationery	16
Communications with other judges	17
Testifying as to character	19
Limitations on association	20
Charitable, religious, cultural and other organizations, sports and social clubs	21
Travel	25
Association with criminals	26
Association with persons regularly attending court	26
Contact with politicians	27
Judges and political affiliations	28
The example of Justice Holmes	43
Appointment by the executive does not imply subservience	45
Political activity by members of a judge's family	49
Misconduct in private life and the finger of scorn	50
Sexual harassment	59
Criminal misconduct	61
Tax evasion	63
Conviction is not a prerequisite for discipline	64
Physical violence and abusive statements	65
Alcoholism and drug abuse	66
Misconduct can take many forms	68
The need for appropriate disciplinary mechanisms	69
Isolation and the quality of justice	71
Judicial ignorance	75

Commercial and business activities	81
Permitted business activities	84
Statutory functions	87
Gainful occupation approved by the President	90
Law reform activities	93
Practice of law	94
Arbitration, mediation, conciliation	96
Teaching, writing, lecturing	96
Gifts, bequests, hospitality, loans and favours	100
Maintaining competence in the law	108
Conscientious effort	114
Why be a judge?	120
 Notes to Chapter 1	 121
 Chapter 2 Public Confidence	 155
From colonial to recent times	155
The current scene	157
The IBA mission	158
The way ahead	161
The importance of public confidence	163
Public confidence and enforceability of decisions	168
The need for vigilance and positive action	179
Changing standards and conduct	185
The formulation of standards within the cultural context	189
A code of conduct or a statement of ethical principles ?	193
Picking the right person for judicial office	202
The application of standards	206
Independence and unfitness for office	208
Motive and judicial misconduct	213
Publicity of discipline and public confidence	221
The matter of Justice Thomas Berger	230
Parliamentary disciplinary proceedings and public confidence	234
Should waiver of confidentiality be permitted?	238
 Notes to Chapter 2	 241

Chapter 3 Justice According to Law	266
Introduction	266
Judges as the sole interpreters of the law	267
Decisions must be adequately tied to the law	268
Ascertaining the boundaries of the judicial function	271
Precedent and the judicial function	273
Accepting the decisions of higher tribunals	275
Judging in an environment without precedent	277
Ubi ius ibi remedium	278
Prospective overruling	280
Should judges make law to prevent injustice?	281
Giving effect to the intention of Parliament	288
Justice Robin Cooke's 'deep rights' doctrine	291
'The Darwin proposition'	295
Hard cases	295
Certainty in the law	297
Judge's dislike of the result of applying the law	299
The cause célèbre and public opinion	306
Striking down laws	314
Doing justice in a changing society	317
Social justice, fundamental rights and the appointing process	330
Judges as agents of social reform	339
The Directive Principles of State Policy	351
Good and bad 'activists'	352
Interpretation of the Constitution	353
Judge-made law	355
Judges and the Roman-Dutch Law	362
 Notes to Chapter 3	 363
 Chapter 4 Freedom of Speech and the Judge	 384
The judge and the fundamental right of freedom of expression	384
A judge is not an ordinary citizen or public officer	385
The risk of causing dissension and disaffection among judges	386
The risk of distraction	392
The risk of bad reporting	392

Avoiding public controversy	393
Participation in radio and television programmes –
The Kilmuir Rules	398
Sir Geoffrey Palmer's Protocol	401
Comments on matters of policy	401
Symbolic protests	409
Public criticism for violating the 'no comment' norm	410
Discipline for violation of limits on free speech	410
A middle course on comments on defects in legislation	413
Statements manifesting bias or prejudice	419
Unacceptable comments from the bench	420
Comments on persons not before the court	430
Justice is not a cloistered virtue	431
No headline hunting	433
Public scrutiny is an essential part of the judicial method	433
Criticism of judges is not a new phenomenon	435
Unacceptable criticism	439
Physical attacks on judges	441
The constitutional right to criticise judges and their judgments	446
Scandalising a court is prohibited	448
Media and other pressures on decisional independence	460
The need for caution in exercising contempt powers	473
No personal response to criticism	475
Others, including the Bar and academics, must defend the judiciary	484
Comments on judicial work	487
No parade of 'warts and all'	493
Notes to Chapter 4	495
Chapter 5 Bias or Prejudice	518
Foundations	518
Constitutional implications and public expectations	520
The appearance of justice	523
Actual bias and apparent bias	526
Consequences of biased or prejudiced judgment	532
The meaning of 'bias' and 'prejudice'	534
Bias should be from an extra-judicial source	535
Bias should be personal	536

Proving actual or apparent bias or prejudice	537
Disqualification is often a highly contentious matter	542
International attention	542
Some basic principles in the U.S.A.	543
The practice in Sri Lanka	544
Judge must adjudicate unless disqualification is required	546
A proper balance should be sought	549
Waiver of disqualification	550
Statutory disqualification	555
Is waiver of statutory disqualification permissible?	558
'Automatic disqualification' and waiver	561
When disqualification should be determined	565
The perception of litigants	565
Disqualifying bias is determined objectively	567
What is the test – reasonable suspicion or apprehension or real danger?	567
The basic rule and its rationale	573
Legislative variation of the basic rule	574
Disqualification for interest – general considerations	580
Particular interests	584
Judicial promotions and appointments and impartiality	585
Judge as a party to proceedings	588
Judge as member, officer, director or trustee of a party	590
Economic, pecuniary or property interest	592
Fiduciary as judge	600
Judge as virtual prosecutor or defender	600
Sitting on appeal against own decisions	602
Rehearing a matter	604
Judge as witness in the proceeding	604
Party's lawyer as judge in the proceeding	606
Acting Judge's partner as party's lawyer	608
Former lawyer of party as judge	612
Prior quasi-professional contact with potential party	614
Judge's former partner or associate as party's lawyer	615
Spouse or relative as party	616
Spouse or near relative as officer, director or trustee of a party	620
Spouse or near relative as a material witness in proceeding	620
Judge's spouse or relative as counsel	620
Judge's attorney's appearance as counsel	624

Fellow member of the bench as a party	624
Judge's enemies or antagonists as parties	625
Judge's enemies or antagonists as attorneys	629
Acts intended to create apparent bias	632
Disqualification to be decided on a case-by-case basis	633
Judge's friends as parties	633
Business relationships	636
Judge as debtor to a party or estate	638
Prior contact with party	639
Personal knowledge of evidentiary facts	645
Prior contact with witness	652
Prior contact with victim of crime	654
Extra-curial public statements	655
Comments from the bench and other indications of partiality or prejudice	663
Statements during plea bargaining and pre-trial negotiations	676
Statements while sentencing suggesting bias	677
Religious bias	681
Racial or ethnic or caste bias	683
Gender bias	689
Language bias	692
Personal beliefs and background	693
The rule of necessity	714
Tentative general guidelines	716
Notes to Chapter 5	718
Chapter 6 A Fair Trial	780
Introduction	780
The right to be heard	782
Public hearing	783
Broadcasting and televising court proceedings	786
Place of hearing	793
Making orders in respect of accused persons at a judge's residence	798
Inquiries and inspections outside the court-house	800
No ex parte communications – Introduction	803
Ex parte communications with lawyers	807
Ex parte communications with parties	809

Ex parte communications with law enforcement personnel	810
Ex parte communications with other persons	811
Ex parte communications -- remedies and corrective action	813
Establishing the facts	814
Neutrality, impartiality and the limits of judicial intervention	815
The assistance of Attorneys for the parties	828
Unrepresented litigants	830
The assistance of counsel for the court	831
Authorities not cited by counsel	836
Attentiveness	838
Attentive silence	839
Patience	845
Courtesy	853
Decorum	863
Attire	864
An atmosphere of calm and dignity	870
Recording the evidence and arguments	872
Weighing the factors	875
Judgment	879
The problem of delay	883
The requirement of prompt disposition	885
Prompt but fair disposition – the temptation of brevity	886
Judge must act lawfully	888
Efficient case management	890
Delay in delivering judgment	892
Postponements and adjournments	894
Conclusion	901
Notes to Chapter 6	902

PART TWO

CAUTIONARY TALES

Sir George Jeffreys	933
Justice Angelo Vasta	935
Justice V. Ramaswami	937
Justice Lionel Murphy	941
Justice David Albert Yeldham	953
Chief Justice Neville Samarakoon	960

Lord President Tun Salleh Abas	970
Justice Leo A. Landreville	999
Justice Donald Stewart	1045
Justice Abe Fortas	1061
Lord Hoffman	1122
Lord Denning	1124

PART THREE

APPENDICES

Appendix 1	Relevant provisions of the Constitution	1131
Appendix 2	U.N. Basic principles on the independence of the judiciary	1138
Appendix 3	Latimer House Guidelines for the Commonwealth	1142
Appendix 4	Beijing principles of the independence of the judiciary	1146
Appendix 5	American Model Code 1990	1154
Appendix 6	The Bangalore Draft 2001	1176
Appendix 7	Sir Matthew Hale's Rules	1186
Appendix 8	Justice Wimalaratne's Precepts	1188
Appendix 9	Cardinal Newman's Discourse	1192

TABLE OF CASES	1194
-----------------------	-------------

INDEX	1222
--------------	-------------

ABOUT THE AUTHOR	1232
-------------------------	-------------

AN EXTRACT FROM A JUDGEMENT OF JUDGE C.G. WEERAMANTRY	1235
--	-------------

JUSTICE ASOKA DE SILVA'S MESSAGE	1242
---	-------------

FORMER CHIEF JUSTICE G.P.S. DE SILVA'S MESSAGE	1243
---	-------------

HON. CHIEF JUSTICE MOHAN PIERIS'S MESSAGE	1244
--	-------------